MADERO TRIED A TRICK THAT FAILED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The resignation of Francisco I. Madero as president of Mexico not only clarifies the situation in the disturbed republic so far as the United States is concerned, but lays bare a deep-laid scheme on the part of the retired official to maintain himself in power. It developed that Madero's appeal to president Taft not to intervene was intended to secure a declaration from this government which would line up Mexicans—federalists and rebels—behind Madero to resist American invasion.

Historic Precedent.
In a way, this action was similar to the plan recommended by Seward when secretary of state to Lincoln, under which the United States was to inaugurate a war against Europe and thus arouse a state of patriotism for the common country, north and south. Lincoln refused to take the course suggested by Seward and confined himself to efforts to suppress the rebellion.

Lacks Lincoln's Wisdom.
Madero had not the wisdom of Lincoln and his retirement was the result. It appears, according to telegrams from rear-admiral Southard and other sources, that Madero flooded Mexico with dispatches announcing that the United States was assembling military forces for the purpose of occupying Mexico and appealed to federalists as well as rebels to stand behind him in maintaining the integrity of the country.

Plays Intervention Rumor.
Following the circulation of these reports, Madero telegraphed to president Taft that he had been informed that the United States "has ordered to set out for ports of Mexico war vessels with troops to disembark and come to this capital to give guarantees of safety to Americans," and that the disembarkation of troops would cause a conflagration and terrible consequences of more extent than the ones we have to contend with at present."

Nailed by Taft.
Had president Taft failed to indicate in his reply that the United States was not contemplating intervention, but was relying upon Mexico itself to restore peace and order, undoubtedly Madero would have taken advantage of the absence of any such assurance to use the note as proof of the reports he had spread.

MEXICANS GET TO THE BORDER FIRST

Alpine, Texas, Feb. 21.—The sheriff's posse, which has been trailing the Mexicans who looted the Hancock, Hayley and Cotter ranches, failed by an hour to reach the border before the fugitives, whom they saw crossing in the distance. The Mexicans had stopped near the Cotter ranch house to ask their way, and William Cotter, who recognized the Hancock horses, tried to buy them. The Mexicans refused to sell, and after having been wrongly directed by young Cotter into a canyon south of the "O" ranch which has but a bridge path outlet, they helped themselves to fresh horses from the Cotter pastures and rode off. They succeeded in making their way out of the canyon before morning, when the posse from the "O" ranch hit their trail. They were successful in getting all the horses across the border.

It is feared that their bold venture will inspire others to depredations, especially if the troops are withdrawn. In view of the seriousness of the situation county judge A. M. Turney and J. B. Jackson, president of the Commercial club have wired to governor Colquhitt asking him to present the case of the border cattlemen to the war department at Washington, or else order a detachment of rangers to the Big Bend frontier.

GERMAN DISCUSSES MEXICAN SITUATION

Berlin, Germany, Feb. 21.—The Mexican situation came up for discussion in the imperial parliament today when Gottlieb Von Jagow, the foreign minister, replied to an interpellation of Germans in Mexico. He declared that Germany had not sent any warship to Mexico, as the only vessel available in American waters was on the way to Philadelphia for repairs. The foreign office, however, had learned that numerous United States warships in Mexican waters had been instructed to give refuge to all foreigners and as far as possible to protect their property. The German foreign office had thanked the United States government for this service.

As damage was done to German property, the German government will take steps to secure full compensation. "Germany in general is committed to a policy of noninterference in the internal affairs of foreign states," said Von Jagow. "But this will not prevent her from standing vigorously for the protection of her subjects."

REBELS TO ACCEPT HUERTA MAYBE

elements. Sale of public lands on easy payments will be asked. This statement is official.
"We will demand the fulfillment of the land grant clause before taking any sides in the matter," said Manuel L. Lujan, former rebel emissary to Washington, who returned late Thursday from the rebel camp below Juarez. He spoke for Gen. Jose Yacaz Salazar, rebel commander in chief, who controls more than 2000 troops now in the field. "Mexico cannot stand another revolution," declared Lujan. "It would ruin the country. No matter how unsatisfactory the present situation may be, we will try to satisfy the popular demand by political rather than armed strife."

Gomez's Position Not Clear.
The relation of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, who announced his claim to the provisional presidency before Gen. Huerta, was not made clear. Senor Lujan said that Gomez was with Salazar. While the rebel chief had accepted the Gomez claim, he was loath to adjust that in event that Huerta's cabinet would give guarantees that the public lands, particularly of Chihuahua state, would be distributed according to the former promises of Madero. It was said that a concrete plan would be offered by Huerta by rebel delegate who will leave within a few days for Mexico City.

Aldape and David de la Fuente.
On the trip to Salazar's camp, Lujan was accompanied by Manuel Garza Aldape, named at Mexico City as minister of agriculture. Aldape said he would deliberate before accepting the offer. Neither is it certain that Col. David de la Fuente, Salazar's chief of staff and Gomez's cabinet member, will accept the cabinet position offered by Huerta.

Palomas Customs House Opened.
Another manifesto has been issued from the rebel headquarters of Emilio Vasquez Gomez under the date of February 15. Jointly with J. Yacaz Salazar, subsequently of the interior, he designates the customs house at Palomas, Chl., as of the third class and open for international traffic from this date. Goods are to be valued at 50 percent less than formerly when imported. Duties are to be collected and entries made according to the present federal customs.

Garza Aldape left last night for San Antonio, Texas, where he expects to receive a direct communication from Gen. Huerta regarding the cabinet offer. So far he has refused to commit himself in either accepting or refusing the position.

Orozco Invited to Conference.
Pascual Orozco, jr., has been called to Mexico City by Felix Dias for a conference with the successful revolutionist. The message was sent to Col. Pascual Orozco, sr., at Nuevo Laredo Thursday, and was transmitted to El Paso Friday morning for delivery to Gen. Orozco in the field. A courier was sent with the message to Orozco's camp in the district of Bravo, south of Juarez, where he is believed to be in company with Marcelino Caraveo, near Chihuahua. The message from Orozco's father said that he had been included in the invitation from Dias and that both he and his son were in perfect accord with the Huerta-Dias government.

Conference at Palomas.
A conference of rebel chiefs has been called at Palomas at once to consider the plans for the cessation of the northern revolution and the acceptance of the new government. Manuel Lujan, head of the revolutionary junta here, is authority for this. Lujan returned from the Ojitos conference Thursday night, after having a talk with Gomez. David de la Fuente and Salazar. He says that he is now waiting for telegraphic authority to call the Palomas conference at which final decision will be made as to the future of the revolutionary party in the north.

Lujan says that the expression at Ojitos Thursday was all in favor of peace, providing the land policy of the new government is satisfactory to the northern rebels.

Gomez Opposed to Peace.
From other sources it is said that Gomez opposes the recognition of the Huerta government and is urging Salazar to fight, as he feels that he has been left out in the cold on the new deal. But Salazar is reported to have refused to continue the revolution, at least for any personal reasons, preferring to quit, as he says he is tired of fighting.

The land policy which the northern rebels will insist upon provides for the floating of a loan of from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 with which to purchase large tracts of land and sell them to the people on long term payments covering 30 years.

Gonzales Must Resign.
Another provision of peace with the northern rebels will be the resignation of Governor Gonzales at once. "This will be one of the principal conditions upon which the revolutionists will agree to lay down the Huerta government," Gonzales is held to be an enemy of poor and rich alike in the state of Chihuahua.

Orozco Alive On January 15.
A mining man of Parral, who has just come from Mexico, says that about Jan. 15 he was in the camp of Pascual Orozco, jr., about 40 miles northwest of Jimenez. Orozco had with him about 500 men and entertained the miner and his party for about two hours. The mining man says he has known Orozco for years and could not possibly have been mistaken, and that if he is dead he has died since the 15th of January.

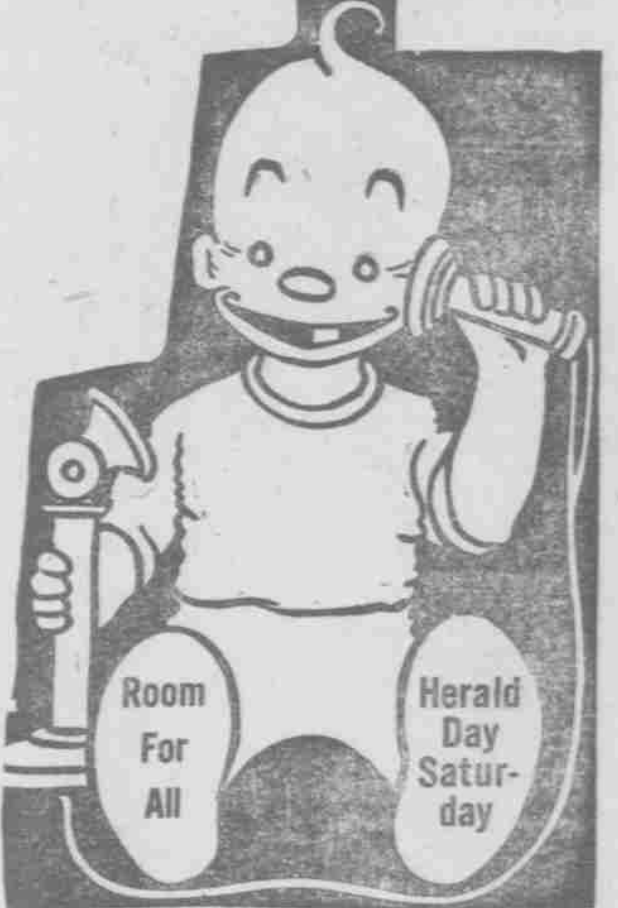

Orozco was nursing a badly swollen knee, which was getting better but had been bothering him then for two months.

What of Salazar?
Revolutionists in El Paso say that while Salazar has expressed his desire to retire from the field, they believe that he will be induced to take men and go south to oppose Zapata and his force if Salazar accepts and Zapata refuses to accept the Huerta government. They do not think that Salazar will accept the position of governor of Chihuahua in place of Gomez, even provisionally, as they say that he is not capable of handling the affairs of the state government.

The rebels here consider the appointment of De la Fuente and Manuel Garza Aldape to the cabinet as a substantial recognition of the northern revolution by the government. The Huerta cabinet is a Diaz cabinet, since Huerta is the selection of Diaz for the provisional presidency pending his own election. This was the method pursued by Madero in selecting De la Barra as provisional president.

Adapts to Sol.
